

Dear Colonel Bosbyshell

It is with great reluctance I write to say that I will be obliged to resign my position as adjutant on account of ill health. to take effect on the first of December. It was my intention to have staid until the first of the month, but I was obliged to leave the Mint yesterday morning feeling quite ill, and the doctor will not let me return. I want to thank you for all your kindness to me during the last four years, especially during my last illness. I have tried very hard to keep on with my work, but instead of getting better, I seemed to get worse. When I am able I will stop in and see you. Hoping this will meet ^{with} your approval I am very sincerely Fanny L. Price

Dear Colonel Bosbyshell

It is with great reluctance I write to say that I will be obliged to resign my position as adjuster on account of ill health, to take effect in the first of December. It was my intention to have stayed until the first of the month, but I was obliged to leave the Mint yesterday morning feeling quite ill, and the doctor will not let me return. I want to thank you for all your kindness to me during the last four years, especially during my last illness. I have tried very hard to keep on with my work, but instead of getting better, I seemed to get worse. When I am able I will stop in and see you. Hoping this will meet with your approval I am very sincerely
